A New Edition of,

DR. DODDRIDGE'S FAMILY
EXPOSITOR; Or, a Paraphrase and Version of the New Testament, with Notes, and a Practical Improvement of each Section.
The following is an Extract of a Letter to Dr. Doddrige, from the late GILBERT WEST, Esq; the celebrated Author of the Observations on the History and Evidences of the Resurrection, soon after he had received the first Part of the Family Expositor.

Since my last, I have advanced pretty far in your FA-MILY EXPOSITOR, some Portion of which I read every Day; and intend to read it on Sunday Evenings to my Family. After this I shall not tell you that I admire it exceedingly, as I am also some very worthy Clergymen in my Neighbourhood. The Translation, as far as I can judge by my Memory, (for I have not compared it with the Oriiginal) is very exact and faithful; the Notes, pertinent and judicious; and the Paraphrase, by consulting and reducing into their proper Order and Arrangement, the scattered and dislocated Parts, like a Catoptric Speculum, represents, in its true Symmetry and Proportion, a beautiful Figure, which in its original Draught is want to ap-ppear confused and distorted to an unskillful and superficial Eye. The Improvements too are apposite, instructive, and full of a genuine Spirit of Candor, Piety, and a truly Christian Pervious. In short, the FAMILY EXPOSITOR is a great and useful Work, which will speak of you, and for you, through the transitory Ages of this World, and the endless Ages of the next. May God give you Grace, Health, and Vigour to complete it! If the remainder of Volumes are to be published by Subscription,
I desire my Name may appear in the List of those who, either out of regard to the Author, or Esteem for the former Part of so admired a Performance, shall think fit to dear publick Testimony to both; which I should be glad to do upon all Occasions. I am, &c. &c. GILBERT WEST.
ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS.

There is not any medicine ever yet discovered more worthy of public confidence, than Bur trell's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS, and may be justly ranked among the first Medical discoveries for the preservation of health. Thousands in this city and state have given "the most flattering and decided testimonies of their superior efficacy—Suffice it to say, that in alarming weaknesses, where the functions of the animal economy are rendered incapable of performing the ordinary operations of nature—in debilitated and shattered constitutions—bad digestion—cough, arising from congealed phlegm—fullness at the stomach, with reachings—sour or bitter taste in the mouth—head-ache—pain or giddiness in the head—costiveness—windy or painful complaints in the stomach or bowels—hypochondrias—nervous irritability (not unfrequently the consequence of intemperance, debauchery, luxury, studious, sedentary or inactive life—bilious vomitings, or yellow fever symptoms—hardened feces—noxious accumulations—obstructions and other morbid affections of the liver—diseases incident to the female sex at every period of life, especially the turn or climactic of life—these pills are deservedly celebrated; and when occasion serves by sea or land, where opening physic is required, they are effectual and safe, as confinement is unnecessary. In fine, they are a powerful tonic appliance. Travellers, cannot store a more important article of health.

Prepared and sold by the author, at no. 19 Murray-street, a few doors from the corner of the Park. (Price half a dollar each box—$ Where he may be consigned every day, from 8 o'clock in the morning until ten in the evening.

Also the following highly esteemed Medicines:

Godbold's Vegetable Balsam, for the cure of Con tumptions, Asthmas, &c.—Essence of Mustard and Pills for the Rheumatism and Gout—Patent and sov eign ointment for the ITCH—Augue and Fever Pills—Pectoral and Specific, for all complaints at the breast and lungs—Artischochitic Pills—Circassian Lotion, for cleansing and clearing the Skin—Worm de stroying Pills—Powders for douches for children.

Statistics of Europe

Europe contains in the superfices, 153,599 square geographical miles, of 15 to a degree, or only 1,15 of the continental superfices of the whole earth. Its population is estimated at 180 millions and a half—which gives one with another, 1,177 inhabitants to each square, geographical mile. It should always be remembered that this population is very unequally divided; for if in the Lower Counties, for example, we reckon 4,550 inhabitants to a square mile—Russia contains but 447—Sweden 362—and Norway only 118.

The Roman Catholics are in number 100 millions—the Protostatic and of different Communions, about 42 millions—the Schismatic Greeks, 32 millions—the Metropolitan, 240,000—the Methodists, 180,000—the Unitarians, 40,000—the Quakers, 40,000—the Mahometsans, 2,630,000—the Jews, 2,060,000—and the Hernhutters, 40,000.

In chusing out each state according to its superfices, its population, its ordinary revenue, and the contributive proportion of each individual towards the public burdens, we find they should occupy the following order:

Population.—1st, Russia; 2d, Sweden; 3d, Austria; 4th, France; 5th, Turkey; 6th, Spain; 7th, Great Britain; 8th, Prussia; 9th, Germany; 10th, Denmark; 11th, the two Sicilies; 12th, Portugal; 13th, Sardinia; 14th, the Netherlands; 15th, Switzerland; 16th, the Ecclesiastical States; and 17th, Tuscany, &c.

Revenue.—1st, Great Britain; 2d, France; 3d, Russia; 4th, Austria; 5th, Germany; 6th, the Netherlands; 7th, Prussia; 8th, Spain; 9th, Turkey; 10th, Portugal; 11th, the two Sicilies; 12th, Sardinia; 13th, Sweden; 14th, Denmark; 15th, the Ecclesiastical States; 16th, Tuscany; 17th, Switzerland, &c.

Contributive portion of each individual towards the Public Charges.

This last calculation is the most curious. It demonstrates what each individual pays annually, one with another; namely, in England, 2s 2d; in France, 17 cents; in the Netherlands, 22d 2c; in France, 18s 7d; in Germany, 16s 6d; in Russia, 1s 8d; in Denmark, 1s 6d; in Portugal, 1s 5d; in Prussia, 1s 3d; in Spain, 1s 8d; in Sardinia, 1s 2d; in Austria, 1s 6d; in the Ecclesiastical States, 9d 4c; in Sweden, 9s 11d; in Tuscany, 9s 12d; in Turkey, 3s 4d; in the two Sicilies, 7s 9d; and in Switzerland, 5s 4d. This last is the weakest of all the European States. [Paris Papers]

DEPARTURE OF MEDITERRANEAN STEAMER.

The United States mail steamer Admiral, arrived in New York last evening, bringing out the following letters.

Arrived In New York Last Evening.

THE ADVANCE AT KISHINEV.

Letter From Mr. Davenport, Military Attaché, Bells.
In the War in the Caucasus.

Of these changes and events, few, if any, were more momentous for Western Europe, that unexpected momentous revolution in the establishment of the ... to the conclusion of the war in the Caucasus.

The Russian Tsar was well aware that ... war of 1853-1856 was not yet over, and ... the more pressing issue of the Crimean War.

The Tsar's promise was part of a larger strategy. The Russian government had long been concerned with the growing power of Great Britain and France in the region. The Crimean War was seen as an opportunity to assert Russian influence and to check the advance of the West. The war was also a means of distracting public attention from domestic problems, such as the growing unrest among the lower classes.

In the end, the war in the Caucasus did not produce the desired outcome. The Tsar was unable to secure the promised territories, and the war was a costly and embarrassing failure for Russia. Nevertheless, it was a significant event in Russian history, marking the beginning of a new era of Russian expansion and militarization.

The war also had significant consequences for the rest of Europe. It contributed to the decline of the Ottoman Empire and to the rise of nationalism in the Balkans. It also helped to bring about the eventual unification of Italy and Germany, as these countries sought to assert their influence in the region.

In the years that followed, Russia continued to play a role in the affairs of the region, but its power was much diminished. The war in the Caucasus was a turning point in Russian history, and it remains a symbol of the country's struggle to assert itself in the face of Western imperialism.

The steamship Circassian, from Liverpool, now in her eleventh day out, has not yet been signalled. The weather is fine, with a westerly wind.
CANCER.

MEDICAL SCIENCES, including all the sciences connected with medicine, are the objects of the greatest attention in the present day. The great advantage of the present time is, that the patient can have his case examined by many different practitioners, who, by their joint efforts, will be able to discover the cause of the disease, and cure it. The following is a list of the principal practitioners in the city of New York:

Dr. Jones: Office, 123 Main Street.
Dr. Brown: Office, 456 Jane Street.
Dr. Smith: Office, 789 Broadway.
Dr. Taylor: Office, 1011 Madison Avenue.

These gentlemen are all highly esteemed for their skill and experience, and are much relied on by the people of the city. They all have large practices, and are well known for their kindness and humanity.

The following is a short account of some of the leading cases of cancer which have come under their care:

CASE I.

A young lady, aged 20, was admitted to the hospital on the 1st of January last. She had been suffering from cancer for some time, and was in a very weak and emaciated state. The doctors were unable to discover the cause of the disease, and could do nothing to relieve her. She died on the 10th of January.

CASE II.

A man, aged 30, was admitted to the hospital on the 15th of January last. He had been suffering from cancer for some time, and was in a very weak and emaciated state. The doctors were unable to discover the cause of the disease, and could do nothing to relieve him. He died on the 20th of January.

CASE III.

A woman, aged 40, was admitted to the hospital on the 1st of February last. She had been suffering from cancer for some time, and was in a very weak and emaciated state. The doctors were unable to discover the cause of the disease, and could do nothing to relieve her. She died on the 10th of February.

CASE IV.

A man, aged 50, was admitted to the hospital on the 15th of February last. He had been suffering from cancer for some time, and was in a very weak and emaciated state. The doctors were unable to discover the cause of the disease, and could do nothing to relieve him. He died on the 20th of February.

These cases are but a small fraction of the number which have come under the care of the doctors in this city during the past year. The disease is very prevalent, and the doctors are much occupied in trying to discover the cause and cure it.

The following is a list of the principal causes of cancer:

The doctors advise the following remedies:

1. To avoid bad diet. 2. To limit the amount of work. 3. To avoid unhealthy habits. 4. To prevent the spread of the disease. 5. To avoid excessive use of alcohol.

The doctors also advise the following precautions:

1. To keep the body clean. 2. To exercise regularly. 3. To avoid exposure to the sun. 4. To avoid exposure to cold. 5. To avoid excessive heat.

The doctors also advise the following remedies:

1. To take a large dose of hot water. 2. To take a large dose of cold water. 3. To take a large dose of wine. 4. To take a large dose of vinegar. 5. To take a large dose of brandy.

The doctors also advise the following precautions:

1. To keep the body clean. 2. To exercise regularly. 3. To avoid exposure to the sun. 4. To avoid exposure to cold. 5. To avoid excessive heat.
THE CONTINENTAL MAIL STEAMSHIP COMPANY.—
New line of American mail steamers from New-York to Antwerp, calling at Havre, will dispatch their first steamship, the Circassian, on Wednesday, the 18th inst., at 3 P. M. The Postmaster-General has arranged with this Company to transport the Continental mails direct, thus avoiding the extra expense of the transit through Great Britain. This Company has appointed the day of departure of the Cunard steamers from Boston, and will thus enable correspondents to mail their letters one day later than by the Boston Cunarder. The Circassian is rated A1 and is very fast.
THE CAPTURE OF NIKOPOLIS.

TWO MONITORS SURRENDERED BY THE TURKS TO BE FITTED OUT FOR SEA BY THE RUSSIANS—SCENES AFTERTHE CAPTURE—COSSACKS MOVING TOWARD WIDDIN.

LONDON, July 18.—A Times' correspondent telegraphs from Turnu-Magurelli, July 16: "I have visited the two monitors captured from the Turks. They can probably be made ready for action without much delay. I have also seen the Turkish prisoners, who were transported to the Roumanian side of the Danube to-day. The prisoners are all regulars, the Bashi-Bazouks and Circassians having left some time ago. On the heights commanding Nikopolis, empty cartridge cases lying in every direction, tell of a desperate struggle. Thousands of rifles, bayonets, and accoutrements are piled along the road to the town where a train of 300 wounded Moslems await removal into improvised hospitals. The Turks burned their stores and the principal buildings of the town last night before surrendering.

The correspondent of the Times at Bucharest sends the following, dated July 17: "To-day the Cossacks of Baron Krudener are said to have reached Lem Palanka, advancing toward Widdin. The Manchester Guardian's Vienna dispatch states that the two Pashas who surrendered at Nikopolis are the same who recently permitted 260 pontoons to pass Nikopolis for the building of the Sistova Bridge. Bribery is suspected.

Various special correspondents of the London papers, including that of the News at Turnu-Magurelli, who was an eye-witness of the operations, fully confirm the capture of the Turkish garrison and artillery of Nikopolis, as reported by the Times. The surrender seems to have been brought about by encircling Nikopolis with an overwhelming artillery fire, to which the Russian and Roumanian batteries at Turnu-Magurelli contributed. There was three hours' fighting on the glacis."
Circassian Slaves.
Chicago Daily Tribune (1872-1963); Jul 22, 1877; ProQuest Historical Newspapers Chicago Tribune (1849 - 1985) pg. 12

The Circassians are at their old trade of selling their children again. Last week a physician was sent for by a Pasha who lives over in Scutari. On arriving at the house, the old gentleman confided to him the fact that he had bought a Circassian girl of her brother £100, upon condition that a physician should be allowed to examine the girl, who was 19 years old, before the purchase-money should be paid. What the doctor was wanted for was to make this physical examination of the girl. The doctor, who is an Englishman, with a position in society that ought to have guaranteed his lending himself to no such performance, made the necessary certificate after seeing the girl, and the sale was completed. The Englishman said that the girl was not particularly pretty, but was simply a well-formed, healthy young woman, who seemed quite elated at the thought of exchanging her novel for the old sultan's palace.
CANADA.

The Queen (Charlottie-Caroline) is expected to embark for England next week. She has been in London for some time, and the occasion of her return will be much noticed. The Cabinets are expected to dissolve in the course of the week, and the Queen is to return to Canada on the 15th. The Queen is expected to be well received in London, and the press is much interested in the event.

The Queen is accompanied by her family, including the Duke of Connaught and Queen Mary. The Queen is to be crowned on the 21st of March, and the ceremony will be attended by many dignitaries.

The Queen's visit to London is expected to be a great event, and many preparations are being made for the occasion. The Queen is to be received by the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York, and the ceremony will be attended by many dignitaries.

ROMANTIC REUNION.

A young couple calling herself Bobo-El-Bulo opened a fortune teller's booth on the Boardwalk a few days ago. She gave out that she was an Egyptian princess. She dressed in a fantastic costume composed primarily of a Persian shawl, a gilt belt with jewels and a pair of glass shoes and a pair of baggy Nile-green silk trousers which reached to the knees, where they were fastened around her shapely legs by garters of brown silk with gold clasps. Her complexion was as dark as a light negro's, but her features were the purest Circum-

TheIR. She was nearly white and her eyes extraordinarily luminous. Her booth speedily proved a centre of attraction for young and old. She told the most astonishing fortunes in rhyme, apparently, composing the verses as she and her client calculated the young fellow's hand. Indeed their friendship ripened so fast that he finally prevailed upon the supposed Egyptian Princess to go with him yesterday afternoon to the lighthouse near the surf deep enough to get her head wet. Sellers noticed that she wore gloves with long arms and the only part of her flesh visible was her neck and face. While they were conversing in the shallow water, a wave flashed over the man's shoulder, she dropped panting and bewildered, the color-matter washed from her face and her skin was as fair and white as it had been in those early days. With a cry of delight, right there on the beach, before the eyes of hundreds of spectators, Sellers threw her arms around her neck and kissed her again and again.

"Carrile Sellers," he shouted, "Carrile Sellers, I've found you at last. Every boy and girl made a rush for the young couple, and soon the nature of their relationship spread from one end of the Boardwalk to the other. Bobo-El-Bulo, the Egyptian fortune teller, was the younger brother of the famous fortune-teller, who left her son Frederick Lawrence Sells to Sells, the young Kansas City visitor. Without an absolutely bad girl she had always shown a desire to lead a life free from the ordinary trammels of conventional society. The question was: When did she leave, or eight years after, when she was eighteen years of age, a dispute with her father, or her sudden disappearance from home. Her family lost all trace of her. Six months ago her father, a wealthy man, received a letter from her telling him of her return to the home of her childhood, not knowing of her father's death. She could not find courage, however, to shew her brother, thus eventually leading to the exposure and reunion.

Bobo-El-Bulo's booth on the Boardwalk is closed to-day. An Egyptian princess is to appear to toll the fate of the past and future. But pretty Carrile Sellers and her delighted brother took the early morning train for their distant Western home.
The Story of a Russian Woman Carried to the East by the Impulse of a Country Cousin—Wedding Party—Yanks in Attack of a Russian Volunteer Brigade—Russian Beauties—

BEAUTIES OF CIRCASSIA

A GREAT deal has been written about the beauty of Circassian women, and I believe that there is no other race that can stand comparison with them. In the days of Turkish rule, they were held in the highest esteem by the Orientals, and their beauty was the talk of the East. The women were famed for their fair complexions, long black hair, and brilliant eyes. They were said to be the most graceful and lovely women in the world.

The story of a Russian woman who was captured by the Turks and carried to the East by the impulse of a country cousin is an interesting one. The woman in question was young and beautiful, and her capture was a turning point in her life. She was taken to a distant part of the country, where she was forced to marry a Turkish man. However, she refused to obey the orders of her captors, and her husband was killed in a fight with the Turks.

In the meantime, a group of American soldiers had arrived in the area, and they were reported to have killed some of the Turks. The Russian woman was taken to the American soldiers, who took her to their camp. There, she was cared for and treated kindly, and she was able to recover from her ordeal.

The story of the Russian woman's capture and rescue is an example of the bravery and courage of the American soldiers. It is a reminder of the importance of standing up for what is right, even in the face of great danger.

SUPPLING TURKISH BEAUTIES

The Turks are said to have the most beautiful women in the world. They are also said to be the most skilled at the art of beauty. The Turks have always been known for their skill in the arts of beauty, and they have a long tradition of creating beautiful women. The Turks have a saying that goes, "If you want to find beauty, look to the East." This is a reminder of the importance of beauty and the arts, and it is a reminder of the importance of the arts in our lives.

The Turks have a long tradition of creating beautiful women. They have a saying that goes, "If you want to find beauty, look to the East." This is a reminder of the importance of beauty and the arts, and it is a reminder of the importance of the arts in our lives.

In conclusion, the story of the Russian woman and the Turks is a reminder of the importance of beauty and the arts. It is a reminder of the importance of the arts in our lives, and it is a reminder of the importance of standing up for what is right, even in the face of great danger. Gen. Lew Wallace says that the Turkish cavalry is admitted to be the finest in all Europe. The soldiers of the Sultan's army are said to be scared, whom Bull Run Russell called "the most picturesque sounding in the world," are, Gen. Wallace says, "bloodthirsty and treacherous, recklessly brave and exceedingly beautiful. Eyes among the mass of them you see pale, well-set heads of finest mold." The Sultan himself is a man of kingly bearing, but with a thin face and colorless eyes, keen as a falcon's.

Mrs. E. J. Nicholson, the proprietor and editor of the New Orleans Journal, is the only woman in the world who owns, edits, manages, and publishes a great daily newspaper. She was first a contributor of poetry to the columns of the Press, under the name of Pearl River, and some years ago became the editor of the paper by Col. A. M. Holbrook, its editor and proprietor, thus being the pioneer newspaper woman in the South. After a time she became the wife of Col. Holbrook. On his death she inherited the paper, much incumbered by debt, and with a dubious outlook. She assumed the responsibility courageously, and with the assistance, has put it again on a substantial basis. A few years ago she married George Nicholson, who was business manager of the paper.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW.

Whatever your occupation may be, and however crowded your hours with affairs, do not fail to secure at least a few minutes every day for refreshment of your inner life with a bit of poetry.—Prof Charles Eliot Norton.

No. 1449.

THE ENGLISH GIRL.

By CHARLES MACKAY.

Other selections from this author, his portrait, autograph and biographical sketch, have already been printed in this series.

IVE, O give us English welcomes,
We'll forgive the English skies;
English homes and English manners,
And the light of English eyes.

Give us for our props in peril,
English valor, pith and stress,
And for wives sweet English maidens
Radiant in their loveliness.

Foreign tastes perchance may differ,
On our virtues or our laws.
But who sees an English matron,
And withholds his deep applause?
Who beholds an English maiden,
Bright and modest, fair and free,
And denies the willing tribute—
Of a fond idolatrie?

Lovely are the maidens of Rhineland,
Glowing are the maidens of Spain,
French, Italians, Greeks, Circassians,
Woo our homage—not in vain—
But for beauty to enchant us,
And for virtue toenthral,
Give our hearts the girls of England—
Dearer,—better than them all.

"Poems You Ought to Know" cannot be bought in book form. The first poem ever printed under that title in any publication whatever appeared in the Boston Sunday Globe, July 15, 1894. One is printed every day. The separate works of most of the authors are of course, be bought at all bookstores.

Theatrical Plans for Coming Season Announced—Management of Six Theatres Here.

ANOTHER LEHAR OPERETTA

Musical Piece on Modern China—"Robinson Crusoe'" Extravaganza—Miss Ferguson in Hurbut Play.

KLAW & ERLANGER'S NEW PRODUCTIONS

Klaw & Erlanger issued an announcement yesterday embodying their theatrical plans for next season in detail. Prominent on the list was the presentation of Bert Williams in an extravaganza made out of "Robinson Crusoe," in which the colored actor will play the part. On the main Friday, Glenn MacDonough will write the piece. Another production is the dramatization of Harold Bell Wright's novel, "The Winning of Barbara Worth," which will be presented for Klaw & Erlanger by Edwin Milton Royle.

Another on the list of plays is "Silk," by Frank Mayette and Helen Kraft, authors of "Our Wives," which is scheduled for early production. A musical comedy called "The Merry Mariner" has been adapted by Glen MacDonough from Leon Heldt's novel. The music for this piece is to be composed by Hugo Rothenthal, a Vienna composer. Maryn Arnecke heads the cast of "Silk," and it will be produced out of town, about Sept. 17.

Hazel Down and John H. Young will head a company producing the new musical comedy, "The Little Case," by C. E. S. McLellan and Leon Carrol. About Oct. 1, its opening will appear in a new comedy by William J. Hurbut, entitled "A Strange Woman." Later in the season an American version of A. A. Milne's play, "Hence CRIS," is to be produced. The play is to be based upon Pierre Loti's "Noticerat," which was produced in Paris.

The operetta "The Kissing Butterflies" will also be produced during the coming season. The star is still a question. The cast of the play are modern Creoles identified with the military and club life in the work of Lindau and France. The operetta is "The Ideal Wife" of another of the impressions, which is to be produced by Edward Sheldon and Stefan. Through an arrangement with Michael Furey, the Klaw & Erlanger will bring over an English company in the musical comedy, "The Rainbow." The manager's plan for the firm's play of the first season includes an ess...

EXPERIENCES OF ELIZABETH GREY

BY ELIZABETH GREY.

ARTICLE II.

Copyright: 1919-20 by the Tribune Company.

Bright and early in the morning, Elizabeth Grey, with regret, pulled herself out of a comfortable bed and again sought the residence of Mrs. X., with whom I had secured my first position as housemaid, and with whom I was beginning my investigation into conditions of domestic service in Chicago.

It could not be a very scientific investigation, but I hoped to discover by it some of the reasons why so many girls prefer office work, and factory employment to housework.

I had packed some blue gingham aprons and a white one for waiting on the table into an old straw suitcase, which looked as if it might have sailed with me from Ireland many years ago. It had a mean nature and the handle broke as soon as I had it out on the street, so that I was forced to carry it in both arms and which gave me a polite character.

"Now, Elizabeth," she said, "I want the flat swept out from top to bottom. I used the vacuum cleaner on it yesterday, so it won't be hard. You begin in the front and sweep towards the corner in the hall. Take up the dust then and throw it in the bin on the back porch."

After these directions she seated herself at the telephone in the corner of the room and waited for an hour, conversing with a neighbor occasionally breaking off for an irritable "Stop that!" to one of the children. They seemed good children to me, but their mother was evidently tired of them.

Ironing, too.

I swept the rooms, almost taking the baby several times in the dust pan—she would crawl into it, having a childish liking for dirt. I swept the rugs on the back porch. I dusted the disturbed settee with the polish-green plush and all the other furniture, the polished antiques, and the cut glass. I worked as hard as I could for nearly two hours and then I was ready to see about getting lunch, when I washed my hands at the sink in the kitchen when Mrs. X. came in.

She did not look at me, but pointed to a great pile of clothes on the kitchen table and said something about my "getting to the ironing now."

"Ironing?" I stupidly inquired, and then I found that I must do the ironing.

"There was nothing said about doing the things that I was engaged," I meekly said.

"Well, I can't help that," responded Mrs. X. "I can't pay a laundress $2 a day and a maid at the same time if you don't want to work I don't want you!"

"But why didn't you tell me yesterday that I had to do the ironing?" I asked, taking off my apron as I spoke.

"No Pay—Not Even Carefare."

She lost her temper at that.

"Well, you don't expect me to do it, do you?" she stormed.

I walked away towards my room where I had left my things, and started packing them into the broken suitcase. She followed, still storming.

"What do you think I keep a maid for? Do you think I have to look around to look at? All my maid has done is the ironing and not caring for it.

I looked her coldly in the eyes and said:

"Evidently we misunderstood each other, Mrs. X. Good-by."

She did not detain me, nor did she offer me any pay for my two hours' work. She did not give me car fare, I might have been obliged to walk home if I had depended upon her.

As I went down the steps I saw an advertisement in the X. advertisement. I wanted to take it and tell her to collect in advance.

Mrs. X. is of the type who says, "Dear, I don't know what we're coming to. Those hired girls are becoming more independent every day." And nothing will ever convince Mr. X. that he has not been all that mistresses should be to a maid. Fortunately, I thought, not all the mistresses are like this one.

Victim of Great Lakes

Truck Dies in Hospital

Frank Elwood, 3115 South Harrison avenue, died in St. Luke's hospital yesterday of pneumonia. The jury found evidence of a fatal accident at a Great Lakes Navy Training station automobile truck just in front of the hospital.
A NUMBER of officers at the Army and Navy Club in Washington were one evening swapping stories of their experiences abroad, when one grizzled veteran told of an amusing occurrence he witnessed in Turkey just before the Russian War of 1877. This officer and another American interested themselves as they traveled in studying the various oriental types which were encountered along the way.

Their interest in minor types vanished before a magnificent specimen of the Turkish army officer who entered the train. He was dressed in the fullest and most superb of Turkish uniforms, with red felt on his dark head and abundance of gold lace on his coat. Great spurs glittered on his boots. He was accompanied to the train by several orderlies and servants, who placed his baggage in the compartment which the two Americans occupied. He had straight black hair and mustache, and his skin was almost of the color of bronze. As he climbed into the compartment he apologized in good French to the Americans for disturbing them. They responded as best they could in the same language, insisting that they were not inconvenienced.

Presently the Turk lighted a cigarette and settled back easily in his seat. The Americans fell to talking aloud in English about their companion.

"A typical Turk," said one.

"Yes," assented the other, "but yet there's something in his appearance that is not precisely like that of any other Turk I've seen."

"There may be something in what you say," continued the other American, "but he has a hard and cruel expression about the mouth."

"He's a terror, probably. Somehow though, I don't believe he's a Turk. A Circassian, maybe, or some other kind of oriental. I'd like to know more about that chap."

"So should I."

Whereupon the Turkish officer whose face had worn an expression of stolid unconcern all through this dialogue, took his cigarette from his lips and turned to the American with a smile.

"Gentlemen," said he, "I have no objection to gratifying your curiosities as to my origin. I was born in Louisville, Ky."

The astonished Americans were protest in their apologies, which were accepted with the best good nature. It turned out that the "Turk" was one of several Confederate officers who after the close of the Civil War had accepted service in the army of the Khedive of Egypt.
The Garden Beautiful in Southern California

INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC.

EASTERN flora and fauna seem almost like a branch of the same family. They are all so strongly affected by the same conditions that it is easy to understand why they all thrive in the same soil. In this case, the soil is quite different, but the climate is similar. The climate in California is so mild that it is almost impossible to grow anything that will not thrive there. The mild climate is also beneficial to the growth of plants. The mild climate is also beneficial to the growth of plants.

Sweet Scent

In the issue of June 28, under the title "Sweet Scent," appeared an article on distilling perfumes and spirits. It was sent to us by a reader, whose name was not given, who also sent us a sample of one of the distillates.

Plant More Hibiscus

Where frost is not severe we cannot grow the bright flowering hibiscus in our city parks, but in some parts of the world it is a common flower. The plant is easily grown, and makes a fine ornamental plant for city streets and parks.

A Veleadian Stimulant

Not only does it add to the beauty of the city streets, but it is also a good truck plant.

Poetry Makers

On the farm the housewives are generally the ones who look after the poultry yard. Under these conditions there is often much trouble to secure the proper amount of manure and fertilizers. It is also necessary to provide a good water supply.

Beard Seeds

Visitors to town stores have noticed an increase in the number of beards composed of brilliant red seeds with black spots on them. These are the beard seeds of the beard flower, a plant that is native to the eastern United States. The seeds are also used as a food for birds.

Country Roads

Bicyclists should insist on having good neighborhood and market roads. They should insist on having good neighborhood and market roads. They should also insist on having good neighborhood and market roads.

River-side beauty

The State of Maine has a law which provides that all roads should be kept in good condition even during the winter.

New Chinese Fir

Mehl Virginial during 1925 in the high mountains of Tennessee, China, the United States Department of Agriculture has brought to light a large number of fir trees, fir trees with the smallest cones found in the United States. The fir trees are now supplied with the aid of the United States Forest Service, and in the summer of the year 1926 the fir trees have been sent to the Forest Service, and in the summer of the year 1926 the fir trees have been sent to the Forest Service.

Time Was When He Was Not the Despised of the People, but the Favorite of Princes

By R. LE CLERC PHILLIPS

It has been recently observed in the United States that a sentiment of endurance modern and prehistoric was played almost in part in the face of the American masses. This is a fact that has been suggested to the writer. The conviction is deeply rooted in the minds of many people. It is a conviction that has been held for a long time. It has been held with a firmness that is characteristic of the American people.

Without doubt the most famous of these aliens to occupy a dominating role in a foreign country was that of the United States. The United States, which has been the object of so much criticism, has been the object of so much praise. The United States has been praised for its government, its constitution, and its laws.

JUNIOR GROUP PLANS FOR ALLAVERDY BALL

Georgian Circassian Society to Raise Charity Fund at Plaza on Jan. 23.

The Georgian Circassian Society is preparing to give the Allaverdy Ball on Jan. 23 at the Plaza, under patronage of prominent members of society and the Russian colony. The funds obtained will be devoted to the society's welfare work.

Many details for the event are being arranged by a junior dance committee headed by Miss Dorothy Paine and Princess Dolly Obolensky. Their aides include:

ALLAVERDY SOCIETY HAS ANNUAL BALL

Members appear in spirited Caucasian dances at Ninth Costume Fete Here

DINNERS PRECEDE PARTY

Proceeds of the Event to Aid Sponsors' Vacation House and Scholarship Fund

Members of the Caucasian Society Allaavary appeared in a revival of spirited native costume dances last night at the ninth Allaavary Ball held in the main ballroom of the Plaza. Many old-time customs of Georgian, Circassian, Ossetian and other Caucasian peoples were observed by the society members in the special entertainment program arranged by Prince Dimitri Djojpadzha. Princes Dionysius and Alexei were in charge of general arrangements.

The dance was given to aid the maintenance of a summer vacation house at Cold Spring, N. Y., and the scholarship fund of the society. The organization was founded two years ago to aid indigent Caucasians here and abroad to promote closer cultural and social relationships between Caucasians.

Many persons of prominence in this city assisted the directing committee of last night's fête. Prince Kader Gudry, one of the founders of the sponsoring organization, and members of his reception committee attended the party in elaborate native costumes of gold- and silver-embroidered brocades and velvets worn a generation ago at feasts in Czarist Russia.

Several dinners were given before the ball. Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin P. Watson gave a party for Dr. and Mrs. William Studdard, Mrs. Kathleen Schwab, Mr. and Mrs. William von Giann and Dr. Franklin Hanger.

Count and Countess Anatole Buchiedden also gave a dinner. The Countess is the former Princess Svistopolk-Mirsky. In their party were Mrs. Marcus Dally, Dr. and Mrs. Alexei Glenny, and Mrs. Alexander Greener, Mr. and Mrs. Boris Martvinooff, Mrs. Thomas Hughes, Mrs. Denison Forbes, Colonel George Phillipoff and Edward P. C. L. Cumming.

Miss Monique Watson, chairman of the junior committee for the ball, was hostess to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rawles, the Messrs Mary Zabriskie, Cecile Dudley, Rita Singleton and Jacqueline Denny, William Fair Poor, Robert Schafer, Thomas Palmer and Alexander MacPhedran.

Princess Ketto Mikeladze also gave a dinner.

Mrs. Benjamin P. Watson headed the patrons' committee and Miss Marie Delphine Campbell was chairman of the debate committee. The floor committee was under the leadership of Alexander Tarelaize.

Jordan Wins Foreign Currency From Export of Trained Minds

Pride of City of Refugees Is in Students Scattered Around the World

Special to The New York Times

AMMAN, Jordan, July 14—Since Old Testament days it has been the fate of this city to lie in the shadow and frequently in fear of Jerusalem. The present population of 280,000 is not sensitive about this. Of the 300,000 tourists that will visit Jerusalem this year, only a handful will come on to Amman, just 65 miles to the northeast across the historic Jordan River valley.

This is unfair and unjust, in the view of Amman. For this is Bible country, too. Here lived the Ammonite descendants of Lot, a patriarch of Genesis. Here is a town built around a spring and on solid rock and inhabited largely by refugees or descendants of refugees, Amman is a bustling place today.

It came to life in modern times when the Turkish Sultan, after a war with Russia nearly 80 years ago, sought a refuge for Circassian Moslems driven from Russia.

He decided on Amman, largely because it was considered a safe place in the hills, with plenty of water provided by the spring. Today, descendants of those Circassians are among the town's well-to-do landholders. And the picturesque black and white villages that distinguish members of King Hussein's palace guard.

As refugees, the 19th-century Circassians have been succeeded by 250,000 Palestinians who swarmed into the city during the Arab-Israeli war of 1948. They sought jobs but accepted tents and rations provided by the United Nations.

Gradually, many tents have given way to stone houses and a good number of the refugees, having been granted Jordanian citizenship, have found their way into the civil service. As many as half a dozen have become ambassadors.

The white stone of the new houses and public buildings gleams painfully in the noonday sun. Of late, construction has far outstripped trees planting. It has also outpaced city zoning and street naming and house numbering. Asphalt thoroughfares up the hills follow the winding paths chosen by donkeys and camels centuries ago.

The United States Ambassador lives on "Jebel Amman," or Mount Amman, and so do all members of his staff. That is the only address they have.

Amman has an agricultural college that it considers a budding university. However, the capital's great source of pride is in the number of students it sends abroad for studies. There are 18,000 in Beirut, Cairo, Europe and the United States.

The port Jordanian stewardess on the Bound Amman flight told the other evening discussion that while she was a native of Amman her family now resided in Rochester, N. Y. Three brothers are in the university there, she said, adding, "one of them will be a doctor."

"I just came to Amman for a vacation and got this job for the summer," she said.

King Hussein asserted in an interview that Jordan might soon overtake Egypt as a leading source of professional talent in the Middle East. There are 60,000 Jordanians in Kuwait and 16,000 in Saudi Arabia.

It was a king who first gave value to the people.

Yet the current situation, with an increasingly narrow American and British military force, is a classic example of good governance, new only in its speed and brutality. It is a regime that has been both sophisticated and theocratic, both a laboratory and a reliable partner in the global struggle against terrorism. It will further diminish our moral stature and our legitimacy.

Iraqis are rightly何况即 to anticipate outcomes imposed on them by others that turn their economic or political interests into a form of domination. But the outcome of this conflict will be determined by the United States, and it will further diminish our moral stature and our legitimacy.

The tension of power must not be misinterpreted as a threat to the stability of Iraq. It is a threat to the stability of the region. The United States must not be seen as a threat to the stability of Iraq. It must be seen as a threat to the stability of the region. The United States must not be seen as a threat to the stability of Iraq. It must be seen as a threat to the stability of the region.
