Types of articles

Research Articles presenting ethical, original, well-documented research with valid findings that add value to the existing evidence, and with implications in clinical practice are given preference.

Articles submitted as Case Reports are expected to have one of the following properties: cases challenging to diagnose; novel diagnostic technique, treatment or operative approach; management of clinical complications. Rarity of the case is not required but it should be presented with a discussion of differential diagnosis. Complications that serve clinical decision making will be considered for publication. Case Reports should be presented as an informative manner and simulation of cases should be supported with clinical photographs, photomicrographs and radiographs as appropriate.

Reviews must include recent research and summarize important concepts. Use of diagrams, flow charts, tables and figures to enhance clarity rather than using block bulk of written information is encouraged.

Opinions should represent concise opinion pieces that address various topics of relevance to dental practice. These topics may highlight controversial opinions, or issues within the field.
