

FROM THE EDITOR

Dear Readers of Acta Orthopaedica et Traumatologica Turcica,

I am pleased to present you the second issue of 2011. As I mentioned in the “editorial” of the last issue, AOTT is paving its way in becoming a prominent international journal. In this second issue, we are publishing valuable articles from five different countries, along with notable entries from Turkey. This international interest will increase the impact factor of our journal in due course.

We are close to complete the preparations for early electronic publishing of the manuscripts accepted for publication. In this perspective, we will place more emphasis on the writing quality of the English texts and give priority to well-written entries. If necessary, we will also refer our non-native English speaker authors to professional translators or medical writers.

We will hold a meeting with our reviewers and editors on Wednesday, May 4th, 2011. The main objective of this meeting is to further improve the quality of the review process in AOTT. The staff will also have the chance of taking an instructive lecture from Mrs. Elise Langdon-Neuner, the editor of “The Write Stuff”, the official journal of the European Medical Writers Association, EMWA.

On behalf of AOTT, I wish to express my gratitude for your support.

Mehmet Demirhan, MD, Prof.
