

FROM THE EDITORS

In the eleventh issue of Moment Journal, we reunite with our audience introducing the theme “Populism and Media”- a hot topic in and out of the academic circle. We hope you will find the articles, interviews, and reviews in this issue interesting, and wish you a pleasant and fruitful reading.

Here, we would like to share a new development we consider very important: as of May 2019, our journal has been a member of the COPE (Committee on Publication Ethics) society. We are truly pleased to be a part of the COPE, which represents a significant standard in determining ethical standards in the evaluation process of scientific publications. Considering that COPE focuses on ethical standards aiming to solve problems that are likely to arise in any phase of scientific publication between publishers, authors, and reviewers; we cannot underestimate the contributions of all the team members as well as the reviewers and authors adopting these standards to the success of this journal. Furthermore, knowing that we make a humble yet significant contribution to improving the negative records of Turkey’s science circle concerning the plundering journals makes us happy in this regard. Therefore, we would like to take this opportunity to emphasize that Moment Journal is the only journal that is a member of the COPE society among Hacettepe University publications. We would also like to remind that our application processes for the memberships of SCOPUS and ESCI are in progress.

Moreover, we continued our organization “Moment Talks” and conducted the second “Memory Walks” activity with Prof. Dr. Funda Şenol Cantek on May 29, 2019.

We are also very happy to inform you that our Scientific Board is now even more qualified with the participation of Lawrance Grossberg from Chapel Hill, University of North Carolina.

Finally, we would like to share the news that Şule Karataş Özaydın is now a part of the Moment Journal English Language Editing Team.

Hope to see you in our next issue “Media and Participation”.
