

TURKISH INSTITUTE OF ARCHAEOLOGY

Colloquium Anatolicum

Directions for Authors

1. Colloquium Anatolicum is published annually by the Turkish Institute of Archaeology (Institutum Turcicum Scientiae Antiquitatis) and contains texts of conferences delivered on different subjects related to the antiquity, and original articles.
2. The articles, previously unpublished, should be written in Turkish, German, English or French. They should not exceed 15 A4 sheets including the visual material, typed in single space lines, with Times New Roman in 12 points.
3. The articles in Turkish should include a summary in the above-mentioned foreign languages, which should count at least 750 words. All articles in foreign languages shall include a summary in Turkish. Articles in Turkish should contain five keywords in Turkish and in English, while the articles in languages other than Turkish should contain five keywords only in English.
4. The number of diagrams, maps, drawings and photographs should not exceed 20 in total.
5. Descriptions for the photographs and artwork must include their sources (if applicable) and be submitted on a separate sheet.
6. All types of visual material in digital format must be 15 cm long with a resolution of 300 pixel/inch minimum; in case the image is intended to be a full-page one, then the long side must be 22 cm. In addition, digital images should be submitted in TIFF format, executable in Adobe Photoshop. Images embedded in another program (e.g. Microsoft Word) shall not be accepted. Drawings prepared in Aldus FreeHand and Adobe Illustrator should be delivered in their original format without any conversion.
7. Articles, written in the Microsoft Word 95 or higher versions should be recorded on a CD or DVD, with a PDF format, accompanied by a hard copy.
8. The bibliography should be prepared according to the examples given below:
