

P23. EXPERT, CLINICAL EXPERT AND THE CRIME: CASE PRESENTATION

Arınç KAFTAN
Muğla S.K. University, TÜRKİYE

Expertise report as a legal tool has been used to discuss the proof where government institutions may contribute on behalf of the legal entity. In this study the share of duty between criminal expert and the clinical expert in a criminal proceeding has been discussed. In the concrete situation a legal procedure was conducted by using an unreal private document. Whenever the claim was brought before the local authority the unreal private document was submitted to one of the national criminal expert institution for investigation. An expertise report was returned that the document for investigation has not undergone any criminal investigation at all. The expertise report resulted with accusing of the crime victim and it has been moved to the clinical research step with the order of the court in a criminal cause thereafter. There was no criminal investigation of the crime no right to attend other proceedings and no satisfaction for the crime victim which is undoubtedly the desire of anyone who has been injured by another. In sum, the victims' right as a mode of public social welfare was excluded from the legal response of the criminal justice to the party indeed.