

Editor's Note

Dear Readers,

We are excited to be with you again in our seventh issue. We are rightfully glad to have come this far in academic publishing within a short period of time. We continue to stand firm in our scientific approach and position whilst moving towards to our fourth year in publishing. Our journal gets the attention of various prestigious academic databases as a result of applying the literal and uniform rules and scientific criterions of academic publishing. Starting from 2015 onwards, our journal has been added to ULAKBIM TR index and in SOBIAD index since 2017. This indicates that we have successfully cleared the hurdle of publishing a high quality academic journal.

The swift advancement of our journal results in high number of applications for publication. The duration of the evaluation process might be extended since we stand firm in being attentive of the evaluation of the increased number of articles by reviewers. Considering that we publish eight articles in each issue, there are extensive numbers of articles waiting in line for publication even if they are formally accepted. These articles are put in order for publication according to their date of submission.

Dear "Journal of Social Sciences" readers,

This issue is consisted of eight articles and two book reviews that we hope you will read with interest. I extend my sincere gratitude to scholars and researchers who contributed to this issue by submitting an article or book review, esteemed reviewers who devoted their valuable time for the evaluation process, to our respected members of the editorial board of journal and all contributors. I hereby pay my respects to our readers whilst hoping to meet again in our next issue.
