

From The Editor

Dear Readers and Colleagues,

Here by we are happy to resent the Volume 7, Issue 2 of the Journal of Entrepreneurship and Innovation Management-JEIM. It is great to publish issues without giving even a break with very good quality of papers from different fields of research. Therefore, we thanks to all readers and colleagues all over the world, who support us in this journey.

As of today, the average downloading per article published in 2017 is 109 and this continuously increasing. We are so happy for the good interest form our colleagues in the area of innovation and entrepreneurship. As usual, we have received great support from Board Members, readers, authors and especially reviewers. We also like to thank to our colleagues for comments and remarks in the name of to improve the impact of the Journal.

In this issue, we have very well addressed five research papers from different topics of the immigrants entrepreneurship, relationship between innovation and entrepreneurship, crypto currency and entrepreneurship and finally family entrepreneurship We hope this issue will also provide useful information both researchers, professionals as well as it will also provide useful information policy makers.

Finally, I like to remind you that you can access all our past and current issues with no charge. I strongly recommend you to read our publications and I believe this will be helpful for your current research and professional business. By using this opportunity, I wish you a very nice season's holiday.
